Introduction

For the 21st consecutive month, Israeli forces have continued to destroy civilian property, agricultural land and houses. According to PCHR's documentation, in the period 1st April – 30th June 2002, Israeli forces razed 1052 donums of Palestinian agricultural land and demolished 68 houses in the Gaza Strip, rendering 675 people homeless. They also destroyed dozens of irrigation networks and water pumps that cultivated agricultural lands, as well as hundreds of beehives and farms.

From the beginning of the al-Aqsa Intifada until 30th June 2002, Israeli forces demolished 668 Palestinian houses, 585 completely and 102 partially in the Gaza Strip, rendering 5,725 people homeless. They have also razed 15,052 donums of land, about 12,834 of which were agricultural lands, and about 2,218 were wooded land. The areas of agricultural land razed by Israeli forces constitute 9.1% of the total area of agricultural land in the Gaza Strip (165,720 donums).

The destruction of hundreds of Palestinian civilian facilities, including houses, factories, workshops, agricultural land and farms, has inflicted large financial losses, which have affected, and will continue to affect, the economic, social, civil and political rights of Palestinians.

Land leveling and property destruction carried out by the Israeli forces categorically violate the Fourth Geneva Convention. Land leveling and property destruction carried out largely by Israeli forces are classified as collective penalties and measures of intimidation and terrorism against civilians, which are prohibited by Article 33 of the Convention that states: "No protected person may be punished for an offence he or she has not personally committed. Collective penalties and likewise all measures of intimidation or of terrorism are prohibited."¹ Land leveling and house demolitions have created wide open areas along the border with Israel, on both sides of bypass roads and near Israeli settlements and military locations, dozens or even as much as hundreds of meters wide. This Israeli practice of creating 'buffer zones' is aimed at expelling the Palestinian people from these areas with the purpose of annexing the area and eventually building new illegal Jewish settlements or extending the existing illegal settlements.

Violations of International Humanitarian Law

Article 53 of the Fourth Geneva Convention provides that "any destruction of real or personal property belonging individually or collectively to private persons, or to the State, or other public authorities, or social or cooperative organizations, is prohibited, except where such destruction is rendered absolutely necessary by military operations." Article 147 of the Convention considers "extensive destruction and appropriation of property, not justified by military necessity and carried out unlawfully and wantonly” as a grave breach of the Convention and thus constitute a war crime.

These unjustifiable actions also contradict the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. Article 1 of the Covenant states that “in no case may a people be deprived of its own means of subsistence,” and Article 5 does not give any state, group or person any right “to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of the rights or freedoms recognized herein...”

The UN Committee against Torture considered that the policies of closure and house demolition carried out by Israeli forces violate article 16 of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and can never be justified.²

Israel always justifies land leveling and house demolition as military necessities, which in fact are never substantiated. According to PCHR’s investigations, land leveling and house demolition are not military necessities, rather they are penal measures against Palestinian civilians, that seek to seize more Palestinian land and create buffer zones along border area and near settlements and bypass roads.

Methods of Land Leveling and House and Civilian Facility Demolition

Land leveling and house demolition carried out by Israeli forces violates international humanitarian law, including the Fourth Geneva Convention. Israeli forces often raze agricultural land and demolish houses without warning and without granting Palestinian owners enough time to appeal against these actions. In the few cases where owners of houses were given short periods of time, PCHR and other human rights organization appealed against such actions. However, these appeals were rarely taken into consideration by the Israeli army, and failed to provide full protection for house owners against house demolition carried out by Israel.

In the majority of cases, Israeli forces impose an atmosphere of terror during land leveling and house and civilian facility demolition. Israeli forces, reinforced with tanks and bulldozers, regularly encroach into targeted areas at night. They fire flash bombs and live ammunition, in an apparent attempt to call on civilians to evacuate the area. They then raze land or demolish houses, leaving civilians with no choice but to leave the area and abandon their property.

Impacts of Land Leveling and House Demolition on Palestinian Civilians

The destruction of hundreds or even thousands of Palestinian civilian facilities, including houses, factories, workshops, arable land and farms, has caused large financial losses, which have affected the economic, social, civil and political rights of Palestinians. The large impact of such destruction refutes all Israeli claims regarding house demolition and land leveling. The impact of land leveling and house demolition can be summed up as follows:

1. Approximately 10% of the total area of agricultural land in the Gaza Strip (approximately 165720 donums) has been leveled, which is considered a high percentage given the fact that the Palestinian economy is very weak.
2. The policy of house demolition has rendered hundreds of Palestinian families homeless. Some relief agencies have provided these families with tents and the Palestinian National Authorities have provided temporary houses for some families. Approximately 5,725 Palestinians have become homeless after their houses were demolished, despite all efforts made to provide houses for them.
3. People whose houses have been demolished have lost their property and furniture, as Israeli forces have not given them enough time to leave their houses before demolishing them.
4. Land leveling and demolition of houses and civilian facilities have created wide spaces along the border with Israel, on both sides of bypass roads and near Israeli settlements and military locations, dozens and even hundreds of meters wide. The Israeli practices indicates that Israeli forces aim the Palestinians from these areas in order to annex the areas and create new illegal Jewish settlements or extend the existing settlements, which remain just as illegal.
5. The policy of land leveling and house demolition undermines economic and social development as it contributes to increasing poverty and unemployment and makes thousands of Palestinian civilians homeless.

Conclusion

Since the outbreak of al-Aqsa Intifada on 29th September 2000, Israeli forces have adopted a systematic policy of demolishing Palestinian houses and razing agricultural land in to create new facts on the ground imposed on Palestinian civilians population who are protected under the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949. Israeli forces have razed areas of agricultural land and destroyed many houses and economic facilities. The use of heavy military vehicles and the deployment of hundreds of soldiers by Israeli forces to carry out such destruction give the impression that Israeli forces are waging a compressive war on the Palestinian property.

Since the beginning of al-Aqsa Intifada, Israeli forces razed approximately 15,000 donums of land, mostly agricultural land. On the whole these actions take place near Israeli military bases, settlements and bypass roads, despite the fact that settlements are illegal under Article 49 of the Fourth Geneva Convention.

PCHR condemns these illegal actions carried out by Israeli forces. PCHR reiterates its call on the international community, especially the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949, to take practical measures to enforce Israel's respect for the Convention. PCHR also calls on the High Contracting Parties to activate Article 1 of the Convention, which obligates them to ensure Israel's respect for the Convention, and to put an end to frequent attacks on civilian residents' property.
